TO MEET NEXT WEEK ON CRISIS: From left to right, Israeli Premier Levi Eshkol and U.S. President Lyndon B. Johnson. Arabs are worried about visit.

On The Eve Of Eshkol's Visit

U. S. STANDS BY ISRAEL

K PROMISED NEW ARMS

LONDON, (CJN). — Soviet Premier Khrushchev has promised Arab leaders that he will more than match any modern weapons given to Israel by Western powers, particularly aircraft rockets and guided missiles, according to a dispatch in the "Daily Telegraph" from its Cairo correspondent, Eric Downton.

In talks with President Aref of Iraq Mr. Khrushchev discussed plans for massive military and economic aid to Iraq.

Downton also writes that Russian military missions are going to Baghdad in order to prepare for the arrival of large quantities of aircraft missiles, tanks and artillery. Iraq may also receive Rusian and Egyptian-produced rockets, and Russian instructors will train Iraqis in handling the new equipment.

THE P.M's CHOICE: Sid Buckwold, former mayor of Saskatoon and prominent businessman, may become the first Jew in Canada's Federal Cabinet if he wins the coming bi-election on June 22nd. Mr. Pearson made it clear that he would appoint Buckwold to the Cabinet if he wins the seat vacated by the late John R. Garland.

WASHINGTON COMMITTED TO SUPPORT JORDAN PLAN

NEW CONCESSIONS TO UAR

(By Our Diplomatic Correspondent)

NEW YORK (JCNS) — State Department experts are evaluating Premier Nikita Khrushchev's speeches in Egypt concerning the Israeli Jordan water scheme and more Russian arms for Egypt. But, before the Russian leader had made his Egyptian pronouncements, the guide-lines had been laid down for the talks Levi Eshkol, the Israeli Prime Minister will have when he visits Washington and other American cities next week, the beginning of June.

America is committed to the Jordan water project and has told the Arabs so privately. Khruschev's remarks are not expected to change this commitment.

NO ARMS FOR ISRAEL

As far as arms are concerned, the U.S.A. was recently still unwilling to provide Israel with conventional arms to maintain the Middle East balance of power, but prepared to take a sympathetic attitude to further financial aid to enable purchases to be made elsewhere.

But atomic warheads are a different matter. Washington is inflexible in its determination to prevent Israel pursuing nuclear experiments aimed at developing missile warheads.

Mr. Eshkol will not have much more than an hour or so for actual discussion with President Johnson, so the White House agenda will probably be limited to Israel's security. The rest of the subjects under review will be dealt with in talks with the Secretary of State, Mr. Dean Rusk, and other officials.

SEE CONCESSIONS TO NASSER

The cornerstone of American policy in the Middle East is the elimination of Soviet influence in the area, and she is prepared to go to great lengths, short of seeing Israel destroyed, to achieve this. This means keeping the Arabs, especially President Nasser's Egypt, sweet.

On the other hand, this is a presidential election year, which is one of the internal political considerations influencing the U.S. A. to show still greater friendship for Israel, even at the risk of still further offending the Arabs.

Given the paramount consideration of ridding the Middle East of Russian influence, the rest of American policy vis-à-vis Israel and the Arabs is to maintain an even-handed programme for the area and to use the U.S.A.'s influence and, if necessary, power to keep either side from attacking the other. Not only this, but reasonably good relations must be maintained with all the countries in the area, in order to safeguard the State Department's unchanged objectives in the Middle East: preserving peace; the safeguarding of the West's lines of communications and sources of oil; promoting progress through aid, and creating markets for American goods.

MYTH OF ARAB UNITY

Arab unity, despite the Cairo summit conference in January, is still a myth, Washington reasons. Israel is in no danger of attack and retains her military superiority. Nuclear weapons could change this, but America is determined to ensure that neither side acquires them. Support for Israel's water diversion project is assured, but in order to keep the Arabs in check over the matter and to safeguard the main objectives of Washington policy, concessions in other spheres are likely to have to be made to the Arabs. On balance, however, Mr. Eshkol's visit is expected to be a fruitful one. He is the first Israeli head of State to receive an official invitation to visit Washington, an achievement of the first order. It is further than America has ever gone in telling the Arab States that it considers Israel a permanent member of the Middle East.

CHINA COURTING SYRIA

WASHINGTON, (CJN) — Thirteen Arab ambassadors on Monday paid a call on Secretary of State Dean Rusk during which they expressed "concern" over next week's visit in the American capital by Premier Levi Eshkol of Israel.

Eshkol will arrive in the United States on a state visit on Sunday, May 31st and will be received by the President on Tuesday.

TO VISIT DAMASCUS

In the meantime the London Daily Telegraph reports that the Chinese prime minister Chou En-Lai announced that he would visit Damascus, the capital of Syria during the summer.

(China expects to "conquer" Syria in order to counter balance Krushchev's influence in Cairo).

NO THREAT

The Ambassador of the United Arab Republic, Mostafa Kamel, said later that the diplomats had indicated their fear that the Israeli leader would seek to "destroy Arab-American relations in order to have liberty of aggression in the Middle East."

However, the officials emphasized that the Arab envoys had not delivered anything that could be construed as a "warning" and that the United States would pursue its Middle East policies from the viewpoint of its national interest and its desire to see peace preserved in the region.

It was believed in diplomatic quarters that Arab concern over. Eshkol's visit was based primarily on the fact that he will be the first Israeli premier to be received officially in Washington and that his talks here may alter Washington's reluctance to sell modern military equipment to Israel.

David Ben-Gurion visited Washington in 1961 when he was Premier, but his presence was considered "private," even though he met with President Kennedy. At that time, too, Arab diplomats conveyed their unhappiness to the State Department.

New Purges In Poland

London, (JCNS) — Fresh purges of Jews from government and party posts are taking place in Poland. Reports from Warsaw state that at least 20 Jews who have held important positions in the Government State-owned and State-run establishments have been dismissed in the last few weeks. They included several employed in the Ministries of Culture, Labour and Justice. One of the most surprising dismissals in Warsaw a few days ago was that of a Jewish woman attorney who after some 15 years of service was released from her post suddenly and without any excuse.

There have also been considerable purges of Jews in the Polish diplomatic service. Today only a few remain, and their days are said to be numbered. numbered.

Roumania Frees Zionists

London, (JCNS) — A number of Zionists imprisoned in Rumanian jails and "corrective" labour camps has been released as a result of a partial amnesty and allowed to return home.

The amnesty from which about a 1,000 persons are reported to have benefitted so far has been announced in an apparent effort of the Rumanian Government to create the proper climate for the economic and financial talks with America which, Rumanian Government circles hope, will result in a new grant of aid and trade agreement. Negotiations for new trade relations with the United States were due to start in Washington two days ago and they are expected to help Rumania to overcome her acute economic difficulties.

It is estimated that at least ten thousand men and women are still held as political prisoners in Rumania. A large number of them are Jews who were involved in Zionist activities or had registered for emigration and were arrested and summarily tried sentenced to be kept in prison or labour camps as "political" prisoners.

ARAB ARCHBISHOP JOINS HISTADRUT

TEL AVIV, (CJN) — Archbishop George Hakim an Arab [illegible] and speaking English, the Archbishop told Mr. Becker: "Please call me chaver Hakim and not Your Excellency, the Archbishop." To this, Mr. Becker retorted: "Round here we do not give up titles lightly."

holder of Histadrut membership card number 762935.

His Excellency, Greek Catholic Archbishop of Acre, Haifa, Nazareth and all Galilee and spiritual head of 24,000 Greek Catholics, drank a toast to peace and Jewish and Arab amity with Histadrut Secretary-General Aharon Becker and other labour leaders after Mr. Becker handed him the Trade Union membership card in his office.

Dressed in flowing black robes

Church 'Pro-Worker'

The Archbishop declared that "The church is not against the workers but with the workers, and is pleased at what the Histadrut is doing for them.

"Now that I am a member, I will press the Histadrut to do more for the Arab industrial and rural sector. The Histadrut should press the Government to accord Arab centres the status of development towns, and set up youth hostels in large towns for Arab village youth working away from home," he said.

The Archbishop's party included the Mayor of Nazareth, heads of the Nazareth and Haifa Labour Councils and the writer, Mahmud Abassi.

The Archbishop is leaving at the end of the month for a visit to Europe and the United States, primarily to promote pilgrimages to the Holy Land.

A SOVIET ANSWER

Recently Dr. Abraham L. Feinberg, Rabbi Emeritus of Toronto's Holy Blossom Temple, wired the Russian ambassador in Ottawa a protest against manifestations of antisemitism in the Soviet Union. Dr. Feinberg, as he himself declared in the telegram, has "never been a Red-baiter".

In the past, because of his courageous stand for what he considered to be the right approach to the problem of co-existence with the Soviet Union, he antagonized many a friend and admirer. Dr. Feinberg went overboard to placate the ire of those in Moscow who cynically call a dictator of Yemen "a progressive", and the only true democracy in the Middle East, an "agent of imperialism".

Dr. Feinberg's protest to the Soviet ambassador did not merit, in the eyes of the Soviet Union, even the courtesy of a direct reply. His telegram (the text of which appeared on May 15th in The Canadian Jewish News) was addressed to the ambassador, Mr. Ivan F. Shpedko. However, the reply came from the counsellor of the embassy, A. Popoff, who recently seems to be charged with handling "denials." (Any student of the methods of Soviet policy in diplomatic relations knows that, in delicate situations where lies have to be applied to cover up a wound, top diplomats hide behind the skirts of lower officials).

Thus, because Dr. Feinberg dared question an aspect of Soviet policy, because he protested against antisemitic symptoms confirmed just recently by Dean Rusk, Secretary of State of the United States, and Paul Martin, Canada's Secretary of State for External Affairs, he has become persona non grata with whom the ambassador is no more on speaking terms.

To add insult to injury, the manner in which the Soviet Union denies the existence of bigotry and prejudice within its borders is as impertinent as the praises for the most reactionary regimes in the Middle East.

Behold, toilers of the world — exploited workers of France, England, the United States, Canada and other "imperialistic" countries! Here, on the borders of the Nile, is the workers paradise, the dream of Marx and Lenin come alive!

The hypocrisy in the Soviet answer to Dr. Feinberg is apparent from the exaggerations. In this reply, the Soviet government states: "There is no antisemitism in the Soviet Union and there cannot be any."

I repeat, this blatant, cynical deception is obvious — by its exaggeration.

Is it possible that Russia is the only country without antisemitism? On the other hand, is there any country in the world without some measure of prejudice?

The issue is not whether there is antisemitism in the Soviet Union (there are antisemites in the Soviet Union and in the West) but, as Dr. Feinberg insists, these manifestations unfortunately "could not continue without official permissiveness".

To this the Soviet government answers in general banalities. (We are reminded of the "claims" that in Socialist society there are no mental cases, no maladies, no unhappy people).

The question remains: who is lying? Yevtushenko, Bertrand Russell, all who protest the cruel disregard of the plight of Soviet Jewry — or those who whitewash the guilty?

Johnny Mathis Show A Dud

by BARBARA I. PEARL

Sometimes to hear is better than to see. This holds true for the Johnny Mathis Show, featuring Henry Mancini and Orchestra, which was presented last week at Toronto's O'Keefe Center.

The first half of the program belonged solely to the several - times - award winner Henry Mancini. Backed by a forty-piece orchestra, O'Keefe's best, 'tis little wonder that he captivated the young audience. Even the sprinkling of oldsters (anyone pre-World War II) was charmed by some nostalgie— melodies. But the best can become too syrupy. With a medley consisting of Golden Earrings, When I Fall in Love, Sweet Sue, Love Letters, Around the World in Eighty Days, High Noon, Buttons and Bows, Love is a Many Splendored Thing — all these on one program — one had to stifle the instinct to "turn it off for awhile."

It was after intermission that the long awaited Johnny Mathis made his grand entrance. And immediately one detected his great love — the romance between Johnny and the microphone. Without that mike he could not do! If he turned his head away for merely the fraction of an instant, his sweet voice did not soar above a whisper. That, at the O'Keefe, spells disaster.

Hence, what to do? Johnny tried to please both audience and microphone. Result: when he faced front (the mike was at his side so as not to obstruct complete view) and projected sideways, the most fantastic grimaces ensued. At such a time, it seemed by far better to shut one's eyes and just listen.

It was a little difficult to maintain the illusion of Johnny's rendition of, It's Not For Me To Say, The Twelfth of Never, Wild Is The Wind, Chances Are, Maria by having to be subjected to his gyrations. Remembering his recordings helped preserve the balance.

French To Mediate Arab-Israel Conflict

TEL AVIV (CJN) — "Normalization of French-Arab relations would be a blessing to the Middle East and could eventually lead to peace between Israel and the Arab states."

This was stated at a press conference here by the Deputy President of the French National Assembly, M. Raymond Schmittlein.

M. Schmittlein, head of the 11-member French parliamentary delegation which is to end its 10-day visit here on Sunday, stated: "It is no secret that the Arab states initiated the rapprochement with France, and in the distant future France could be the natural mediator in the Israel-Arab dispute."

Expressing the hope that commercial relations between Israel and France would develop, the speaker said that at present the trade balance weighed heavily against Israel because of arms purchases.

M. Schmittlein reviewed the activities of the pro-Israel group in the National Assembly, which he heads, and which was originated by Herut. The group, which includes M. Maurice Schumann, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, was instrumental in securing France's support for Israel's attempts to establish links with the European Common Market.

This group, he said, would introduce legislation extending the statute of limitations on Nazi crimes in France.

ISRAELI GENERAL IN TORONTO:- General Yaacov Dori, former chiefof-staff of the Israeli Defense Forces and currently president of the Technion-Israel Institute of Technology in Haifa, who addressed community leaders and members of the Technion executive at a dinner on Sun., May 24th, as had been annouced by D. Lou Harris, national president of the Canadian Technion Society which sponsored General Dori's visit. General Dori disclosed plans for the dedication of the Canada Building of Natural Resources, which will take place on the campus of Technion on October 1st. He also reported on research in the desalination of sea water with atomic energy now being carried on at Technion — a subject expected to be discussed between Israel Premier Levi Eshkol and President Johnson during the former's visit to the States. After the dinner, General Dori met with a group of professionals under the chairmanship of Henry H. Eckler, Jack M. Bennett, Q.C., and Norman Grant.

OFFICIAL

NO EMIGRATION

In a statement visibly inspired by an order from the Kremlin, Mr. Alexander Likhatchev, First Counsellor of the Soviet Embassy of Israel, has told the press "there will be no mass emigration of Jews from the Soviet Union and the Israeli press might as well stop writing about it."

Mr. Likhatchev has confirmed indirectly that some two-hundred persons last year left the U.S.S.R. for Israel, but he added: "I do not think that any more would like to come."

This declaration underscores once more the recent change for the worse of Soviet policy regarding Israel and the Arabs.

NER ISRAEL

FIRST MILESTONE

The ceremony of the presentation of diplomas at Toronto's Ner Israel Yeshiva College this coming Sunday will mark the first milestone in the development of an important institution of higher education.

Established only four years ago, Ner Israel already has made its contribution to the study of Torah for the sake of Torah.

Although, as such schools go, four years is but an insignificant period in the rise of a yeshiva, the achievements up to now of Ner Israel augur a splendid future for this institution of learning.

Without any doubt, a great community cannot be a true, Jewish one without its own yeshiva college.

HEBREW MEN OF ENGLAND

TORONTO'S NEWEST SYNAGOGUE

The sod-turning ceremony for the new synagogue of the Hebrew Men of England Congregation, one of the oldest in Canada, which took place last Sunday, emphasizes the growth of our Jewish community and the continuous move towards suburbia. Whether or not this uninterrupted, territorial expansion is commendable, the fact remains that the development of Jewish communities is the trend in North America, and Toronto is no exception. However, to paraphrase an ancient adage, it is important to note that the Holy Ark accompanies the Jew where ever he goes.

The entire Jewish community wishes the Hebrew Men of England Congregation well in its new abode.

WHO THEY ARE

NEWCOMERS TO CANADA

An up-to-date report by Canada's Jewish Immigrant Aid Society (JIAS) contains information concerning Jewish immigration to Canada by countries of origin. Some figures are worth quoting.

For example, it is interesting to note that for the last three years the largest group of Jewish immigrants into Canada came from Israel. (In 1963 there were 640 newcomers from that country, 132 more than the previous year.) The second largest group of Jewish arrivals to the Dominion were from the United States (483 in 1963 as of 491 the previous year).

Percentagewise, the largest increase is British — 176 in 1963 against 132 the year before.

During the last year, immigration from Poland fell to 37, as compared with 70 in 1962. A very large number seems to be from North Africa: 243 from Morocco; and a substantial number from France, mostly Algerians (113).

Also, immigration from South America has risen from 89. Only one Jew migrated from Russia; 7, from Roumania. 62 Jews managed to arrive from Egypt. Even Pakistan sent us one immigrant.

A GOOD INVESTMENT

LINK OF BONDS

The first conference of the leaders of Toronto's State of Israel Bonds Organization last Sunday demonstrated again the profound link of attachment between the Jewish masses in the Diaspora and the development of the State of Israel. Almost all Jewish organizations and congregations have sent representative delegations who pledged their determination to raise the people's investment in the Jewish homeland by engaging in yet a greater commitment towards making Israel a powerful, industrial state.

The time when Jews believed that buying Israeli bonds was synonymous with charity is no more. In its sixteenth year, Israel is a flourishing state which aids the less developed countries of Africa and forges ahead on the road to economic grandeur.

This conference which launched the State of Israel Bonds Drive in Toronto coincides with the tenth anniversary of the beginning of the Bonds sale in this country. This year the first Bond buyers are receiving interest together with their investment which paid both by helping Israel and in dollars and cents. Those who bought Israeli bonds ten years ago earned good money while assisting the Jewish state.

It cannot be stressed enough, that Israeli bonds not only are an aid in the direction of projecting the progress of Israel but good business as well.

by D. COHN

• It is interesting to note how much lay-music lovers know about the composer of The Mountain Sylph, John Barnett (1802-1890), who wrote the first English opera in complete form ever attempted up to that time. This earned him the title Father of English Opera. Barnett was born in Bedford, England, son of Bernard Beer, a jeweler from Germany; his mother came from Hungary and his great-uncle was a Polish rabbi. Giacomo Meyerbeer, the composer, was a cousin.

Barnett made his debut at the Lyceum as a child-wonder singer at the age of 11, but with adolescence, his voice "broke", thus ending his singing career. He began to compose light music and appeared on the stage with some success; in 1832 he became music director of the Olympic Theater.

Two years later the opera which won him acclaim, The Mountain Sylph, was produced and ran for 11 consecutive nights — a run unprecedented at that period.

He set himself up as composer of songs and teacher of singing. It is estimated that he put about 4,000 songs to music.

• Danny Kaye, who was running around on crutches recently, had this to say: "I went and poured a pot of boiling water onto my foot, which was a silly thing to do." But his disability did not prevent him from flying to London to launch a series of variety programs. He recalled a recent visit to Russia.

"While I was there I thought I'd look up the place where my folks came from — Yekaterinoslav (Dnieperpetrovsk now) but I was told it was a prohibited zone, so I looked up the house where they settled in Brooklyn instead. No one stopped me there."

• Israel London, New York Yiddish publisher who commissioned Leonard Baskin's drawings for Old Man and the Sea, also owns Hemingway's self-portrait — but now can't find it.

• Barbara Streisand still loves TV dinners, a hangover she cannot shed in her newly acquired affluence.

Miss Streisand said that when she was 14, and worked in a summer theater, two of her baby-teeth had to come out. "So I made my own false teeth out of chewing-gum and I stuck them in to cover the gaps. For two years I didn't smile, for fear my chewing-gum teeth would fall out."

• At a dinner party given in honor of King Hussein of Jordan when he was in New York, the proposed guest list was submitted to him for royal approval. The list included the names of Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor. The Burtons were ordered removed from the list on the Jordanian grounds that Elizabeth Taylor is Jewish.

• Lyricist Alan Jay Lerner, who is going through pangs of separation, may have to give up early-morning breakfasts with his son Michel, 5, if a Supreme Court judge decides the boy is adjusting well.

Lerner, who has been locked out of his New York home by his wife Micheline, contends tha the lad would become emotionally upset if the breakfast get-togethers were interrupted. But Mrs. Lerner's lawyer, Roy Cohn, gave the judge statements by two doctors who said that Michel could be treated like any other boy caught in a domestic dispute.

• Oscar Levant, pianist-actor, never has been known to be concerned about Jewishness and its survival. Hence it was satisfying to learn that he can bring to his Jewish concerns the same depth he brought to his writings and music. When he recently learned that Milton Berle had allegedly become a convert to Christian Science, he remarked that "our loss is their loss too".

• Toronto's comedy team, Wayne and Shuster, flew to Hollywood to firm a TV package series shot in Toronto. The series is set for a major network this fall.

• Debbie Reynolds will attend the world premiere of The Unsinkable Molly Brown in Denver, June 11th. She will be the first guest staying in the newly named Molly Brown Suite at the Brown Palace Hotel.

Before the entire picture was completed, Debbie had worn 32 costumes designed by Morton Haack, ranging from men's britches and long underwear to exquisite Parisian gowns.

NEW DEVELOPMENT

TURKEY-ISRAEL FRIENDSHIP

Istanbul, (JCNS) — The prominent Turkish columnist Faik Suad, writing in the semi-official daily newspaper "Ulus" said:

"We have only one reliable friend in the Middle East — and that is Israel."

Mr. Suad was urging in his article that Turkey should, without delay, take steps to "normalise" her diplomatic relations with Israel.

"What are we waiting for to change an arrangement made by Menderes and Nuri Said, after which we called back our Minister from Israel?" he asked. "Recently the Israeli Ambassador in Cyprus cancelled a reception due to be given on Israel's Independence Day and gave the sum allocated for the party to the Turkish Welfare Organisation. Has any other State or diplomatic representative made such a great and significant gesture to us?"

This newspaper was not alone in its plea for closer diplomatic ties with Israel. The weekly news magazine "Akis" published by the Turkish Premier's son-in-law, Mr. M. Toker, had an editorial which urged the Government to send an Ambassador to Israel immediately.

"Now that we are adopting a new foreign policy, normalising our relations with Israel should be one of the first steps to be taken. Turkey decided some time ago to take such a step, but some of our western allies, taking into consideration their Arab policy, suggested that we should wait... We already have diplomatic relations. Who is to be angry if we send an Ambassador? Those who are sending arms to Makarios.

"Our Foreign Ministry should first of all rectify this humiliating situation."

The New Axis

By DAVID LEVY

The Moscow-Cairo axis, forged in the sweltering heat of Mr. Khrushchev's 17-day Egyptian tour now over, was put to enough strain before it even had time to harden to make one wonder just whether it isn't permanently bent and therefore very wobbly in its future operation.

The strain was caused by Moscow's and Cairo's divergent ideas of "socialism" and "unity". Mr. Khrushchev expressed open and grave doubts about the terms "Arab socialism" and "Arab unity". He had heard them bandied about just a bit too often for his liking. He said he preferred just plain "socialism" and good old "working class unity" instead. And just to show Peking that he was still a good Marxist, he also said that unity should have "a class basis" rather than a nationalist one.

Raising his objection to Nasser's repeated use of the term "Arab unity" in his May 20 speech before representatives of Arab labour unions, Mr. Khrushchev said: "We Soviet people understand unity in a somewhat wider sense, not only as unity within a national framework. We wish to achieve unity with all peoples of the world on the basis of the uniting of their efforts in the general struggle for peace, for the building of the socialist and communist society".

He went on to say that Arab unity, if achieved through the unity of the working peoples, did not contradict the general struggle of all nations for the building of a communist society — "if that word doesn't scare you".

No doubt it scared plenty of his Arab listeners, most of them highly intolerant of socialism, let alone communism, despite Nasser's great fanfare about building a socialist state and despite the new Egyptian Constitution promulgated last March. And all this once again underlines the essential hypocrisy of the Moscow-Cairo axis, with its necessary chorus of slander against Israel. (It is worth noting that Mr. Khrushchev seemed to ease off on his anti-Israel statements as his trip wore on.) For cynical reasons of power politics, Israel remains in the vilain's role as enemy of the Arab peoples and "agent of Western imperialism", despite the fact that Israel, as a society, is a lot closer to the professed Soviet ideal of modern progressivism than any of the Egyptian nations, bar none, where the Communist parties are still outlawed. In this respect, it is certainly a very tragic farce that is being acted out in the Middle East.

If Soviet foreign policy were true to Communist principles, it would roundly reject the reactionary Arab world, for all its display of interest in "socialism", and make its peace with the State of Israel where socialism has achieved a sufficiently high level to greatly impress Canada's Tommy Douglas. The federal NDP leader expressed high admiration for Israeli life in an interview with Percy Saltzman just last Sunday afternoon on CBC radio.

SERMON FOR THE WEEK

THE LIGHT OF SALVATION

As a lamp to my feet is thy word and as a light to my path. (Psalm 119, 105).

Light has always been regarded as something positive, good and advantageous, whilst darkness is negative and equated with evil and adversity. Hence we speak of a man in his misery as living in darkness, whilst in his happiness he enjoys light. When society is steeped in ignorance it is enshrouded in darkness, but knowledge brings enlightenment. A people saved from catastrophe speaks of the light of salvation. Hope is light to those who cherish it for it guides them through the dark places.

The Jew was privileged to be given a deeper insight into the symbolism of light because he was probably the first among the nations to associate light with God. He was convinced that light was God's first creation. The mystics taught that the source of that light was God Himself, for in the words of Daniel, "Light resideth with Him". The same concept gave rise to the expression "the light of His countenance", a concept full of poetic beauty but revealing the intensity of the conviction that illumination, in all its truth and profundity, comes from God alone.

From the same source of light came the Torah, the embodiment of religious illumination, for "the commandment is a lamp and the Torah is light". This is the lamp which has guided the people of Israel through the shades of perplexity. Convinced of the immeasurable source of inspiration contained in the Torah, the members of the house of Israel recite in their daily prayers: "Bless us, O our Father, even all of us together, with the light of thy countenance, for by the light of thy countenance hast thou given us the law of life, loving-kindness and righteousness, blessing, mercy and peace".

Such eloquent testimony to the place which the symbol of light occupies in religious sentiment lends added significance to the Menorah, to which reference is made in the current Sidra. It was ingeniously designed so that its seven branches, each fitted with a lamp, should create the impression of giving forth one unified light. Around the Menorah has been woven a host of midrashic expositions relating to its form and construction and even its ultimate destiny. Legend has it that it was never destroyed but disappeared, when the Temple fell into the hands of conquerors.

Although the Menorah stood near the Holy of Holies it was not an instrument of worship. It served as a permanent reminder of what light conveys to those who enter the sacred precincts; for God, the source of light, does not require it to be kindled by man for His sake. It's ultimate purpose, said the mystics, was to recall the "Or Haganuz", "the hidden light" which was created when the world came into being. It was the first light to be called forth by Him who is Himself light. But that light was concealed from man's vision; it has to be sought and discovered afresh. That first light was complete and unblemished and therefore could not be given to man as a free gift. He has to make an effort to attain it.

Hence the Torah, comparable to light, has to be earned by constant meditation, study and mental application. The illumination which comes from wisdom must be sought and its truths applied and lived. So it is with all the virtues which we associate with light; they demand personal effort if they are to be achieved.

The Menorah's lamps were tended daily — an indication of the need for constant self-application. Not only daily prayer, but daily concern will help us to attain the light of life, righteousness, peace and blessing.

"Not Old-Fashioned"

By Rabbi Abraham L. Feinberg

Dear Editor:

Your "Commentary" on the Vatican (The Canadian Jewish News, May 22nd) which I just read is one of the few mature, "unwishful-thinking", honest statements on the Roman Schema.

As my address (on February 16th) to the Unitarian Church indicated I have never been enthusiastic about the prospect for the adoption of the widely lauded "deicide" statement; in fact, I predicted privately that it would be permitted to fade quietly from the agenda.

I am not by any means an "old-fashioned" rabbi. But I believe strongly in Jewish dignity and pride — and in truth.

Something Clogged The Vatican

Dear Editor:

I read your commentary on The Vatican (The Canadian Jewish News, 22nd). I must agree that something clogged the Vatican machinery just when the Council was about ready to adopt the Schema on antisemitism.

It seems to me that the Arabs have been more efficient in this case. They talked little and did more.

I conclude this letter with a statement by Harry S. Truman, former president of the United States. As reported in the New York Times of May 12th, the ex-president said:

"...Even at the Vatican, where historic reforms are under consideration, the problem of anti-semitism had to be tabled for lack of agreement."

Montreal — Albert LaRosa

Says CJN Is Unjust

Dear Editor:

Your commentary (The Canadian Jewish News, May 22nd) discussing the Vatican and its relationship to the Jews under the reign of Paul VI is unjust. I believe that the Council now is in the midst of discussing a wider and more profound statement on antisemitism than that proposed in the original Schema.

Many Catholic leaders, such as the editor of the Boston Pilate, Msgs. Francis Lally, as well as the editor of the Commonwealth Magazine, and last, but not least, Cardinal Spellman, are convinced (and they stated it publicly for the record) that the Fathers of the Council will soon issue a statement to ameliorate the Jewish-Catholic relations.

Germans, Jews

Dear Editor:

You would oblige us by printing the following excerpts from a letter to the Torontoer Zeitung:

On a subject so painful and delicate, the Habonim Congregation of Toronto feels strongly that the editorial in the Torontoer Zeitung of April 17th cannot be ignored.

The Congregation (composed of Jews from Germany, Austria, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and other Central European countries, who are refugees from Hitlerism or who, themselves, lived through Nazi terror) feels it has a particular stake in this matter far beyond a basic interest as Jews and Christians.

We are deeply disappointed because your newspaper (the Zeitung), instead of flatly condemning the attempt to revive Nazism, attempts to "cover up" by creating a side issue about "anti-German propaganda". It is the duty of a newspaper, especially one published in German, to do all within its power to prevent Nazi ideology from being revived. However, you merely change the subject and complain about "anti-German propaganda".

You attribute to various "half-Jews" and "German Jews" the desire to forget. Speaking for the great majority of Jews of German birth, we say we are not ready to forget, nor can we forget, what happened from 1933-45, particularly the inhuman occurrences during the last six years of that period.

This in no way signifies that we are anti-German; we have no desire to label or libel a nation or people despite what had been done in its name. But Nazism and neo-Nazism is a plague, a disease which we hope German people everywhere are prepared to help eradicate.

Are we in the same boat, as you say? Fortunately for you, you are not, unless you regard Court prosecutions against criminals an attack against the German people. The West German government does not consider this so. Moreover, we apparently have a higher opinion of the German people than you, for we do not equate them with the defendants in the War Crimes Trials.

Congregation Habonim of Toronto

TORONTO'S EITZ CHAIM

by CH. ARGON

So much has been extoled about the vigorous expansion of the Jewish Day School movement the world over, that its growth has become a natural characteristic of modern Jewish education.

Since World War II, Jewish Day School enrolment has increased annually by thousands. In North America an average of fifteen new schools are established every year.

Eitz Chaim has participated in a large way in this amazing growth; expansion has been substantial in every phase of the school. Particularly pronounced has been the recent increase in pre-school enrolment. In only twelve months, this has doubled and indications point to a continuation of the trend during the coming year.

This impressive development can be attributed to: a general surge of sentiment in favor of Jewish Day School education; the pre-school, which has become an integral part of a child's education; parents who send their children to Jewish schools at a very early age and no longer wait till the child reaches grade I; the competence of the teaching staff and the success of its program of activities, which, at Eitz Chaim, has been most impressive; an all day kindergarten and nursery; an all day summer camp, Camp Eitan, which is a feature of Eitz Chaim.

It is interesting to note that, of all major Jewish communities in the world, the number of Jewish Day Schools is highest in Canada.

Eitz Chaim always has taken pride in the accomplishments of its elementary and junior high schools. The intensity of its academic programs and the outstanding success of its graduates after they leave Eitz Chaim have been noteworthy.

It is but recently that schools in Toronto have begun to stress a child's pre-school years. This is becoming a major constituent of a balanced school program. In a world where the accent is on youth and where goals are tackled and attained at a progressively younger age, the increasing emphasis on pre-school clearly is a natural trend.

AND HOW'S BY YOU?

by Ruthie

Sometimes you leave yourself wide open by a simple salutation. The greeting — how are you — said almost automatically can become a half-hour chore of listening.

Of course, there are some who are only too eager to gossip. And their "in" is an innocent, How are you?

Just greet my Uncle Abie like that, and he's off.

"How I am?" he shrugs, "you see, I'm still living, Boruch Ha'Shem (thank God). How can I be when I'm laid off? It's a slack season and who needs a pants presser ?

"I don't want to tell Moomeh (auntie) Gittel, but my ulcers are acting up again. She's getting suspicious anyway because I'm drinking more milk. And in front of her I don't smoke.

"It's a good thing I'm collecting unemployment insurance. But what happens when that runs out? Your smart Moomeh says I should sit in the sun and relax. So who could relax? If I could have a good game of poker in the park — O.K. But who's home to play with? Relax, hah!

"And did you hear? You know the man who comes around selling shoelaces and things? The bald one with a hoiker (hump) and he limps. You know, the noodnik (pest) who argues an hour for a penny. Well, the poor man, I just heard he dropped dead, nisht fahr dir gezugt (not wishing it on you), last week."

Then, before I could cut him short, he's off on the gory details. Frankly, I hate to interrupt because it makes him feel so important.

I always promise myself, though, I'll avoid him if I ever spot him a block away. But, then again, who can resist? There could come the time I'd really like to get an earful.

Moomeh Gittel, is a card. Ask her, how are you, and you're tahkeh (really) in for a session.

"How are you, you ask? Nu, so how should I feel, with your Uncle, that lazy bum, under my feet all day? He's laid off, he says. Well, I can tell you, he's not too unhappy about it. It gives him a good excuse to do nothing. I can't have the girls over for bridge, because then he says, "So that's what you're busy with all day long?'

"And when he goes for a bottle of milk, he asks, do I need servants, why can't I get it myself?

"My arthritis is killing me. But who can stay in bed? You Uncle would say I have it too good, he wouldn't fergin (wish) me a minute's rest. Oi, my enemies should feel like me this morning."

So, with a hasty good-bye, selfish as it may seem, I make a mental note to avoid her too — I've got my own troubles.

I like, Hi! It's not here, it's not there. Meantime, it sounds friendly. The nicest thing is, you can say, Hi, and keep going.

moscow – cairo axis

And if recent writings in Soviet journals of political philosophy calling for a reconciliation of Soviet communism with social democracy in Western-type lands mean what they say, then there would certainly be no barrier left between Soviet and Israeli society. But, as we have said, the cynical dictates of power politics decree otherwise.

In criticizing Arab unity as a goal in itself, a goal which is bound to lead to trouble between Cairo and Moscow when the honeymoon is over, Mr. Krushchev, in his speech to the Arab trade unions, did, however, betray some glimmer of understanding of the Arab world at large — the pocket- filling sheikhs and others of the gold plated Cadillac set — which has been the real cause of anti-Israeli feeling right from the early days of Zionism. Israel's renown as a modern, progressive, enlightened country must surely be known to the Soviet leader; and further, he cannot help knowing, in his heart of hearts, in what brilliant contrast Israel stands to the backward Arab world. He betrayed this understanding when he said: "Sooner eat three poods of salt than come to terms with corrupt sheikhs, though both you and they are Arabs and Muslims".

As for Mr. Khrushchev's objections to "Arab socialism," Nasser flatly denied he had ever used the term in any of his own speeches. If this is the case, and he only uses the word socialism without any Arab nationalistic overtones, then it may indicate a serious international division between him and some of his supporters who are determined to harness socialism — or any other "ism" that happens to be handy, for that matter — to the cause of Arab expansionism and anti-Israel aggression. In other words, Nasser may be a moderate — deep down. Hope for an eventual rapprochement between Israel and the Arab world could possibly be through genuine socialism on both sides, which maybe even Mr. Khrushchev has in mind. Meantime, of course, it remains about as suicidal in the Arab countries to say a good word about Israel as it was in the United States during the McCarthy era to say a good word about communism.

On the other hand, Nasser may have simply been singing Moscow's tune in protesting that he never did use the term "Arab socialism" — just to make sure of getting the $277 million Soviet loan announced on the day of Mr. Khrushchev's departure. This would not be the first time that an Arab leader had been bought off. The only thing new is that this time the Arab leader is found zealously bowing and salaaming in the direction of Moscow instead of Mecca.
